About Us

Cambodia has one of the largest youth populations in Southeast Asia with 59% to 65% of its population below 30 years of age, depending on the source of the estimate. Against this backdrop, one sees inadequate investment in the youth population even though it forms to the largest segment of the population. Only about a third of the youth population ever enrolls in secondary education and only a small fraction of this number enroll in tertiary institutions.

Kampuchea Young Leaders' Action (KYLA) project will be implemented in the third year of 2021, funded by the Oaktree Foundation and is implemented by the KAPE organization based in Kampong Cham city. The long-term goal is to increase opportunities for young people to realize their potential by empowering youth leaders to share knowledge and advocate and benefit young people at all levels of society, including educational institutions, local governments and within Society in general.

KYLA hopes to become a registered organization, there is a need to strengthen internal processes for greater KYLA autonomy from KAPE.
